SCIENCE CORNER

The Structure of Atom

"Atoms are the building blocks of our world. Previously, it was assumed that atoms were like small balls, but definitions have changed. The atom is composed of three major particles: protons, neutrons, and electrons – which are made up of even smaller particles like quarks."

An atom is the smallest particle of an element that may or may not have an independent existence but is always present in a chemical reaction. An atom is the smallest unit that retains an element's properties. An atom is made up of subatomic particles, which cannot be created or destroyed. Atoms of the same element are all identical, whereas atoms of different elements are of different types. When atoms are rearranged, chemical reactions occur. An atom is too small for the human eye to see.
